Loaves and Fishes Goal Met! Romany (Gypsy) Church in Moldova to Have Building

After 5 years of valiant struggle, Bethlehem Baptist Church, a Gypsy congregation, in Vulcanesti, Moldova will soon have a building for the first time through a partnership with CBF-LA.

Members of Bethlehem Church in front of their soon to be completed building.

Following a mission trip in October to view Romany work, John Daugherty challenged our fellowship to sponsor the church's building efforts.

Poor in things but rich in spirit, church members live in the most impoverished nation in Europe and comprise the only all Gypsy church in the country. In a town unable to afford even one public building, the church will provide a natural outreach center for all village life.

Most members live on only a few dollars a day, making the $30,000 price tag for refurbishing the church seem hopelessly out of reach. Local laws prevent use of the building until it is brought up to code. After CBF Missionary and Louisiana native Keith Holmes and his wife Mary championed the cause of the congregation, seed gifts began to come from individuals and church groups, including a pledge from Broadmoor-Baton Rouge that included 3 months salary for the pastor.

Then in March, when Keith visited his home church of University-Baton Rouge, a vision for this work ignited with the parishioners, who pledged the remainder of the funds, nearly $20,000!

A small construction and VBS mission trip is set for late August. To participate or assist, contact Keith Holmes at kh@worldmail.org. Construction hopefully will be finished by year's end. Like loaves and fishes in the Master's hands, this offering brings the Bread of Life to a hearty young congregation ministering among the least of these.

Baptists of Multi Stripes Build with Habitat for 12 Katrina Families

On 12 home sites in Baton Rouge, hundreds of Baptists united for one common cause – rebuilding the lives of Hurricane Katrina evacuees. A two-week “blitz build” began late April in several neighborhoods. In partnership with Habitat for Humanity, CBF joined other Baptist organizations to fund the build, and mobilize nearly 600 volunteers.

Joy Yee, Past National Moderator: handy with the siding.

Other groups included American Baptist Churches USA, Baptist World Aid, Alliance of Baptists, Canadian Baptist Ministries, Progressive National Baptist Convention and the District of Columbia Baptist Convention. “It’s a beautiful mixture of Baptists coming from all parts of the country,” said Daniel Vestal, CBF’s national coordinator. “For us to work together has been a joy.”

“There’s a great sense of the presence of Christ here,” said Roy Medley, general secretary for ABCUSA. For many of these families, a new house was the conclusion to an 18-month Katrina journey that took many of them from New Orleans to Baton Rouge shelters, hotels and travel trailer parks. “This will be a better start for me and my daughter,” said New Orleans evacuee Shantrell Merrell, who has been living in a FEMA travel trailer park. “It’s a blessing from God. It’s a miracle.”

Fannie Munson, who is raising five of her 13 grandchildren, couldn’t wait to see the children’s reaction to the new house. “The joy ...only God can explain it,” Munson related. “The hope you see in her eyes – she is so excited and working right along with us,” said Canadian Baptist Ministries volunteer Debbie Bailey, who drove 26 hours from Ontario to help with the build.

Participants came from as far as Canada and California. Some were veteran Habitat volunteers. All wanted to reach out to Katrina victims and most were Baptists experiencing one of the distinctive qualities of this build – working together beyond organizational, racial and geographical boundaries.

“Once you put people in service together, all kinds of differences break down,” said Bruce Wilson, pastor of West Main Church in Danville, Va., which sent a 10-person roofing team. “The hope of the church is in projects like these.”

Through a partnership with CBF, Texas Baptist Men provided food for volunteers, bringing two teams to provide an estimated 8,000 meals. “It’s an honor to be here and be a part of this,” said Larry Burks, a director with the Texas group. “A cup of cold water and a hot meal in Jesus’ name is what [we] are about.”

Daniel Vestal, right, congratulates John Daugherty on missing his thumb 7 of 9 tries.

Broadmoor Pastor and CBF-LA Pioneer John Goodwin Retires as Church Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Just 3 months shy of 28 years as pastor, Dr. John W. Goodwin leaves Broadmoor-Baton Rouge in July for retirement. On May 20, the congregation held its 50th anniversary worship service, celebrating among many things, the excellent leadership of a servant who has shepherded the church for over half its life.

Dr. John Goodwin

Goodwin, an early leader of CBF, has been through the years an unfailing supporter of the movement in Louisiana. His name is on our founding documents and his influence will endure long after the hanging up of his spikes as "professional" minister.

His popular weekly column, "Pastor's Pen Points," travels the country reflecting the pithy, to the point, fun loving personality of its author. John always seems to have a good story up his sleeve, particularly those with twists of irony and humor.

Dr. Malcolm Tolbert notes of his friend, "He has the remarkable ability to lead a church in the direction he is convinced it should take without cutting ties with the members...He is very loved by the congregation that feels extremely fortunate to have had such a loving and wise man at the helm of the church." Indeed, John represents the veteran pastor who has managed to retain the humility, joy and wonder of his high calling.

Pastor John and Bethlehem Church

Pastor Ion, at left, walks along a typical street in Vulcanesti with two church members.

More than a pastor, Ion ("John" in English) Matveev has served as "bishop" of the Baptist churches in the Vulcanesti region of Moldova. In addition, with his wife Vera, he has been foster parent to a sort of mini-orphanage of about 8 kids for 5 years, which has supplied their housing and much of their income. However, they are expecting another child of their own shortly, so will turn the "orphanage" over to another couple. Pastoring Bethlehem Church is a faith step for the family financially.

Pastor Ion is ethnically Romanian. Under his leadership, the church in Nisporeni (sort of the "parish seat" of the region) moved from being in the red to not only paying their bills but giving to missions and outreach. With background in agriculture, he built a greenhouse to start early tomatoes and watermelons (which fetch a higher price at the local markets) as an example for church members in Nisporeni and in Vulcanesti. He also led the church in Nisporeni to partner with Christians in Scotland in ministry to a residential school for mentally handicapped children. They provided the school with blankets and other necessities as part of their outreach.

Pastor Ion has also spearheaded Christian summer camps for his church and children in other unchurched towns. Well known and respected among Baptists in Moldova, he brings much needed spiritual gifts of pastoral leadership and administration to an often chaotic setting. Keith, reflecting on Mary's recent trip, states, "People, whether ethnically Russian, Romanian, or Romany, are warm and hospitable. However, Moldova is not a very organized place, and traveling there involves a lot of faith and more than a pinch of good humor."

Mary reports Pastor Ion has prioritized tasks yet to be done to the interior and exterior of the church. He also envisions mentoring young believers to be leaders and involving them in a Bible college. A new outreach literacy program for youth is in the planning stages. Mary notes, "Many children in the village don't trouble themselves to go to school. Then, when they grow up some, they realize it would be very beneficial to know how to read and write!"

Bringing good news in word and deed is a biblical, wholistic presentation of the gospel that Pastor Ion has committed to with enthusiasm. His work and that of the Holmes and the other 150+ CBF missionaries is dependent on our gifts to the Global Mission Offering. With books closing soon on the annual offering, your help is needed in reaching our national goal of $6,300,000 to grow these ministries. It's not just a Christmas thing! Give generously. Designate in the enclosed envelope or give on line at thefellowship.info.
